CITATION INDEXES

Periodical: A publication issued at regular intervals in print or electronic form (daily, weekly, monthly, quarterly, etc.). Three major examples are newspapers, magazines and journals. A periodical index provide a citation for an article includes the title of the article, title of the periodical, columns, volume, issue number, date, illustration / photographs and pages. The index is arranged alphabetically by subjects and can be cross referenced. Common abbreviations are used. Entries will be arranged as follows:

In addition to using the Standard Headings for index entries the following are also used:

Personal names:

If an article is about a local person make an entry for them.

For example: Smith, John

Place names:

If an article is about a local place make an entry for it.

For example: Ritidian Point

Government of Guam Departments / Agencies:

Make entries for all government agencies and departments.

For example: Department of Administration; Bureau of Statistics and Plans (Bureau of Planning)

U.S. Government Departments / Agencies:

Make entries for federal government departments and agencies.

For example: Commonwealth of the Northern Marianas (Saipan), Federated States of Micronesia, Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands.

Local organizations:

Make entries for local events such as Liberation Day, Discovery Day, etc.
